December 16, 2014 – (Orlando, FL) More than 40 families will enjoy a happier holiday, courtesy of FuelMySchool.com, a Partner in Education with Orange County Public Schools. Community members came together in the second annual Fuel-A-Family Campaign, to the tune of more than $20,000 in donated gifts. Recipients were nominated by local schools. Items will be distributed to school personnel on behalf of the families, and in some cases to the families directly, on Tuesday, December 16, at 9am at Orange County Public Schools' Ronald Blocker Educational Leadership Center.

What: Fuel-A-Family Gift Donations
Where: Ronald Blocker Educational Leadership Center
445 W. Amelia St., Orlando FL 32801
When: Dec. 16th
Time: 9:00 am

Founded by two local moms in 2009, FuelMySchool.com is a non-profit organization that brings the community together to fuel schools, students, teachers and families throughout Central Florida. Each registered school is provided with a custom micro-site where school supporters can learn about the school, view and fulfill school wishes and participate in programs that earn cash rewards for their school. This is the second annual Fuel-A-Family Campaign.

“Five years after starting, FuelMySchool is responsible for driving nearly $200,000 in resources to Orange County Public Schools, and we’re thrilled to augment that with this campaign to make some families’ holiday wishes come true!” says Lisa Hilgenfeldt, Founder of FuelMySchool.com. “We’re delivering bikes, guitars, iPods, Frozen toys, books, games, and then also jackets, blankets and a large amount of food.”

Ms. Hilgenfeldt will be on hand for interviews during the distribution event.
